What is Update?

The Update Computer Club was started in 1983 at Uppsala University as a user club for their DECSYSTEM-20. The club has since developed in the direction of operating both modern Linux and historical computers and organising interesting lectures, exhibitions and conferences.

Today, Update is independent of the university and holds its activities in its own premises at Svartbäcksgatan 65.

What can you do at Update?

- Listen to our lectures
- Take part in maintenance and restoration of antique computers with blinking lights!
- Try programming a PDP-11!
- Solder, repair electronics in our workshop
- Meet other computer enthusiasts
- Participate in game nights and other social activities
- Eat waffles!

Update's collection

We take care of a big collection of historical computers from the 60s onwards. The collection ranges from kit computers to home computers to large computers which were used in research or in companies. Some examples from the collection are: PDP-11, PDP-10, Vax, Nova, Symbolics, Sun, SGI, ABC80, Macintosh, C64, etc.

A distinguishing aspect of our collection is that it contains not only computers, but also peripherals, software and documentation. Some of our items are quite rare and reflect the history of computers not only in Uppsala, but in all of Sweden.

We need you!

In order to be able to preserve the collection in the long term, Update needs a stable funding. You can help us by becoming a member, putting us in touch with sponsors, or telling others about Update.

Become a member

Update has ca. 100 members as of now. Become one of us today! The membership fee is flexible from 240kr per year, with a recommended fee of 1000kr per year.
